

Admission to Institutes in Puerto Rico

- ❖ There are still some institutes that do not yet have an established admission policy for homeschoolers and/or require the fourth year diploma as an entry mechanism.
- ❖ You can complete your high school studies as planned, using the methodologies or curricula that you have decided in your family environment and apply at an accelerated school for the grade 12 exam to obtain the high school diploma and meet the requirement.
- ❖ We remind you that fast-track schools arise as a necessity towards the dropout population, so if you decide to use the academic offerings of these schools for home education (from 7th to 12th grade), you will be able to realize that the amount of material, sequence and scope is far below the standards offered by a traditional school because its purpose is to obtain the diploma quickly.
